Group-guided reading

Before reading

- Page through the story the learners will read. Talk about the illustrations.
- Ask them to predict what the story will be about; based on the title and the pictures.
- Introduce new or difficult words prior to the learners reading the story.
- Make word cards to introduce new vocabulary. (See the list of new vocabulary in the back inner cover.)

First reading

- Learners should read the text individually.
- Learners should read silently or they can ‘whisper-read’ the text.
- Move from one learner to the next, requesting each learner to read a section of the text aloud.

Discussion

- Ask comprehension questions based on the text.
- Focus on phonics, sight words and vocabulary.
- You will find the activities in the back of this book useful to guide the discussion. (Select appropriate activities for the level of the learners.)

Second reading

- On later days, let learners reread the book, either in pairs or alone.
- Focus on fluency, grammar and vocabulary.
- Let learners complete the group-guided activities which are included in the back of this book. (Select appropriate activities for the level of the learners.)

Let learners do a role play if the text lends itself to it.

Learners should do the group-reading activities after reading the story. Let learners work in groups to complete the appropriate group-reading activities included in the back of the book. They should not write in this book. Written activities should be done in their exercise books.
Bheki’s new bike
All Bheki’s friends had bikes. Bheki wished he had one too. He watched as his friends rode their bikes to school. “Oh, I wish I had a bike,” Bheki said.
Then, when Bheki turned eight, his mother and father bought him a red bike for his birthday.

Bheki was very happy. “I have always wanted a bike. Now I can ride with my friends.”
Bheki was very happy. He jumped onto his new bike, but fell off.

He tried again, and fell off again and again and again.

Bheki did not know how to ride a bike.
Oh no! What am I going to do?
He pushed the bike into his room. It stood next to his bed. Every day he polished it so that it shone.

Bheki looked at the bike. “I wish I could ride it,” he thought. “I must make a plan.”
“Bheki, come and ride with us,” his friends called.

“I am polishing my bike,” Bheki said.

“Why don’t you go outside and ride with your friends?” Bheki’s mother asked.

“I am fixing the hooter,” Bheki said.
Bheki did not tell anyone his secret. He could not ride a bike.
Every night Bheki went into the garden and tried to ride his bike when no one could see him.

But poor Bheki kept falling and hurt himself.
One night, his friend Jane saw Bheki trying to ride his bike.

“Bheki!” she called. “Let me hold the bike so that you can ride.”
Jane held the bike and ran behind Bheki.
He fell once, he fell twice, and then he did not fall again.
“"I can balance, I can ride!"” Bheki screamed.
Bheki rode faster and faster.
Jane ran behind him.

Then off he went with Scamp running next to him.

"Yippee!" shouted Jane.
"Yippee!" yelled Bheki as he rode in the moonlight.
I can balance!
I can ride!
The next day, Bheki rode with his friends to school. He was glad that he kept trying.

If at first you don’t succeed, try, try, try, again!

The CAPS requires teachers to allocate some time each day for focused group-guided reading. In group-guided reading, teachers guide learners of a similar reading level, to read the same book, in a group. The reading session should include a range of word attack skills and comprehension strategies that children require when reading. Reading effectively also requires “text talk” between the teacher and learners, and amongst the children in the group. These books include a number of “text talk”, comprehension and other related activities to help teachers direct group reading in their classes.
